Ammo plant shutdown, mothballing funded

A compromise reached by the House-Senate conference committee has ended speculation over the fate of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant at Stennis Space Center.

Funding totaling $45 million was appropriated for the shutdown and mothballing of the plant, which employed approximately 1,700 residents of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River counties and St. Tammany parish at its peak.

Layoffs began in April in anticipation of the shutdown, with more than 400 of the plant's workers affected to date.

The next round of layoffs will be effective today, according to Robert Burns, spokesman for Mason Chamberlain Inc., the private contractor that has operated the multi-million dollar facility since its inception.

Mason Chamberlain expects the staff to dwindle to 400 workers by mid-August, with only 100 workers to be retained past the end of next year when the layaway process is complete. Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran and Rep. Gene Taylor have sought ways to keep the plant operational, despite the Army's declared intention of mothballing it.

Last month, the House approved $90 million for another year of production of the 155mm artillery shells, which the Army feels are sufficiently stockpiled for their use. The Senate appropriated $30 million in shutdown funding in its version of a supplemental aid bill.

The House and Senate are expected to vote on the compromise bill allocating $45 million for shutdown later this week.

According to Burns, the projectile metal parts section is already closed, with layaway in process. Cargo metal parts will close when production contracts are completed, targeted for June 29. The assembly and pack section will follow.

The 100 employees who will remain will be primarily responsible for maintenance of the closed facility.

Water woes

Kiln Water District, Hancock School Board at odds over service to new high school

BY TRACI BONNEY
Who ever said a water hookup was a simple matter?

A small well of controversy has sprung up surrounding water service to the new Hancock County junior/senior high school located at Stennis Airpark.

The county school board voted at a recent meeting to drill its own well, citing high costs as its reason for not wishing to use service provided by Kiln Water District.

The board also authorized its attorney, Joseph "Jody" Gex, to do any legal work necessary to prevent the cutoff of the school's temporary water hookup being provided by the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

Kiln Water District board attorney Michael Haas recently refuted the school board's claims that any problem exists with the district providing service to the school and that the district's rates and other costs will be high.

"There's never been any problem with water supply," Haas said. "Kiln Water District has always been ready, willing and able to supply the school with water service.

"There never was any possibility of the school being without water."

Haas said the rate offered to the school board was the residential rate of 60¢/thousand gallons, one of the lowest rates on the Coast for a rural water district.

"The only thing we have ever said is that we do not want another company in there."

He added that the water district had been informed by the port and harbor commission that the commission was not

Picayune man arrested in clothing store robbery

BY TRACI BONNEY

A Picayune man arrested Friday in Orange Grove was charged Monday with the armed robbery of the Sea Chest in Bay St. Louis, according to Bay St. Louis Police Detective Tom Bursen.

Jessie Armstrong, 37, was arrested Friday by Harrison County officials after leading them on a high-speed chase and crashing near a bank parking lot.

Harrison County Sheriff's Department personnel charged Armstrong with armed robbery for the robbery of the CATO Fashions Store on U.S. 49 in Gulfport, aggravated assault of a police officer, reckless driving and failure to yield to blue lights and siren. Bond was set in Harrison County at $100,600.

Although he currently is incarcerated in the Harrison County jail, Armstrong faces armed robbery charges in Hancock County for allegedly stealing about $160 in merchandise and cash at gunpoint from the Sea Chest women's clothing store.

Bond in Hancock County is set at $25,000. No court date has been set at this time.

Zoning ordinance problems addressed at Bay council meeting

BY TRACI BONNEY

Problems with local zoning ordinances were highlighted at the Tuesday meeting of the Bay St. Louis City Council when three people protested their neighbors' plans for their property.

After the invocation, given by local singing group Class Distinction, and a presentation of copies of the group's newest album, "Doo-Bee-Swing," to the city council, the public forum portion of the meeting was opened.

James McCarthy and his wife, of 29 Chantilly Terrace, addressed the council with a complaint that their neighbor at 31 Chantilly Terrace, Linda Peterson, was violating both zoning ordinances and subdivision covenants with her plans to operate a contract nursing home in her residence.

The contract nursing home is an arrangement where a person agrees to take in and care for up to three nonviolent veterans released to the person's care by the Veterans Administration hospital. The caretaker is paid room and board each month by the Veterans Administration for each veteran in his or her care.

The McCartneys told the council they weren't opposed to her housing the veterans.

"My problem is that she's running a business in an R-2 residential zone," James McCarthy said.

Mayor Edward Favre and council attorney John Scafid said they had researched the situation and believed that the contract nursing home, because it isn't a commercial business and doesn't actively seek customers, does not violate the city's zoning ordinances.

However, they added, it may violate the restrictive covenants for the subdivision, which state that no residence in the subdivision shall be used either directly or indirectly for a business.

The council suggested that the McCartneys talk with others in the neighborhood, then put their complaints and questions in writing and address the letter to the council.

The council then authorized Scafid to answer those questions in writing so the McCartneys and their neighbors will have a clear idea as to how to handle the situation.

Another complaint arose when the council considered John Breeden's application to subdivide his property on Balantine Street.

Attorney Michael Haas, a neighbor of Breeden, pointed out that the Planning and Zoning Commission denied Breeden's request. Haas said Breeden's plan to subdivide his property violated zoning ordinances because his property did not meet requirements for subdivision of property.

Breeden's property includes a house, a two car garage with an upstairs apartment, a swimming pool and several sheds.

Haas added that his main

Favre murder trial continues

The state rested its case Wednesday evening in the murder trial of Van John Favre, who is charged in the September 1989 shooting of a boarder in his home.

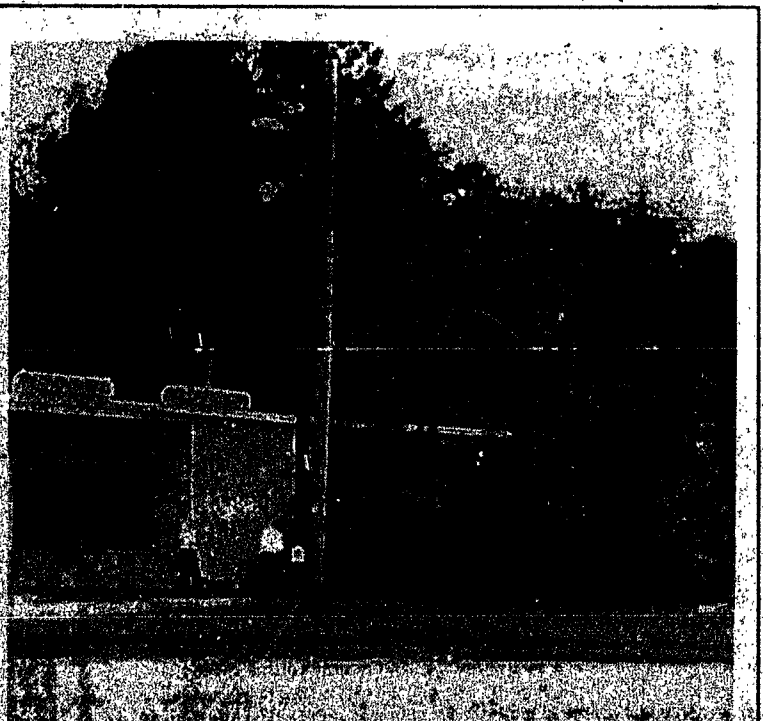

An eight-man, four-woman jury was selected Monday to hear the case, with testimony beginning Tuesday.

Closing arguments by the defense will continue today at 9:30 a.m.

Favre, 43, is charged in the shooting of Jerry Wayne Honnicutt, 39, outside Favre's home September 13, 1989, between 10:30 and 11:30 p.m. Honnicutt, who had been staying with Favre and his wife Linda about three months, was shot in the head with a .30-caliber rifle.

Census efforts continue with door-to-door calls

Several weeks after the April 1 Census Day, operations continue in the collection and tabulating of the 1990 Census forms.

On April 26, a new operation began which is called "nonresponse follow-up." Enumerators are calling on addresses of people who have not filled out and returned their Census forms.

Nationwide approximately 480,000 Census employees are calling on homes, apartments, condominiums, farms, ranches and other dwellings in order to get the most complete count possible.

The work can sometimes be interesting and exciting. In south Texas, after a dam broke, an enumerator was spotted making his calls in a boat. An elderly man suffered a heart attack and was revived by an enumerator who then called for an ambulance.

In another case, a Census

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Why spread rumors?

I am truly amazed at the creativity of those who spread rumors.

I never expected that a simple photo assignment would gain me a place in the "controversy." I was documenting, but it seems to have happened.

Last week, my editor asked me to go take a picture of two local happenings taking place simultaneously at the same location. No big deal; I was just supposed to take the pictures and leave. I didn't even need to interview anyone.

Sounds simple, right? I took the first picture, then went outside and took the second picture — which has since run in the paper — and left. I didn't interview the people involved with the second "happening" because I didn't think their story had any credence to begin with, and I didn't see any point in making a news event out of something that clearly wasn't one.

A couple of hours later, I heard that a reporter from another paper had been punched while on the same assignment.

When I saw him at the assignment, he didn't look injured, but I decided to call him just to be sure.

When he answered the phone, I said something along the lines of, "Hi. I heard you got punched out today. Did you?"

He chuckled and answered, "No. I heard you were slapped." Imagine my surprise! Here I was, feeling perfectly fine, not even realizing I'd been hit.

I'm afraid I may have hurt the reporter's ears when I burst into laughter after hearing I'd been slapped. If so, I apologize.

As for the rumors concerning abused media members, I want to tell those who started them that when you do things like that, you blow your credibility to pieces.

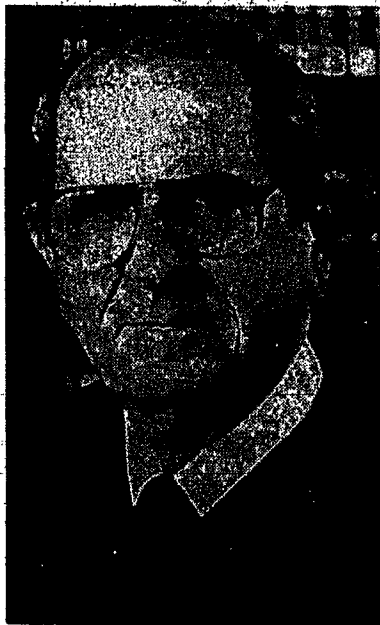

How can you expect the news people — or anyone else, for that matter — to believe your claims when you come up with nonsense like that?

Such rumors only hurt a story, not help it.

So next time anyone out there has a controversial claim to make, remember not to try to sensationalize it by starting rumors. If your claim is valid and you have the proof to back it up, your claim should stand on its own.

If, however, you think you need to resort to spreading rumors to help your cause, chances are that you need to rethink the entire thing before you start making claims.

JOEL BLASS

Justice Joel Blass announces election bid

Justice Joel Blass, now serving as a judge on the Mississippi Supreme Court, announced his bid for election.

Blass, who practiced in Gulfport before his appointment, is one of three justices representing South Mississippi on the nine-member court. The election will be Tuesday, June 5.

A former University of Mississippi law professor, Blass was nominated by the Judicial Nominating Committee last year to complete the unexpired term of the late Justice Ruble Griffin from Bay St. Louis.

"If I've had aspirations beyond the practice of law, they have been to teach and to serve on the courts that help perfect the law," Blass said. "Well, I've taught the law. Now, I want to continue to serve on the Supreme Court and sit with others to write the rules that bring order and justice to human affairs."

Speaking before a crowd of supporters, Blass cited a lifetime of experience as a lawyer, teacher, soldier, statesman and judge that would guide his decisions on the bench.

"Everything you do as a judge is a guide for future legal actions," Blass told the crowd of well-wishers. "You can't carry any banners. You have to represent all of society."

In addition to his extensive legal, academic and political background, Blass is a decorated veteran. He was awarded the Bronze Star as an Army infantry officer in World War II. After the war, he returned to Mississippi, but when his country called again in 1950, Blass left his law practice and served during the Korean Conflict.

"The law is the greatest human institution we have," said Blass. "Its purpose is to bring order and justice to all human affairs. That's a big order. Without the law, we would be living by the rule of the fang and the claw."

Following Korea, Blass served for eight years in the Mississippi House of Representatives where he was named Outstanding Freshman Legislator.

"All men are equal in the eyes of the law," he said, echoing the words that have guided his distinguished career. "That's not just a phrase with me. It's the foundation I've built my life upon."

After serving in the House, Blass taught law for six years at the University of Mississippi School of Law, three years as associate dean. He was named Outstanding Professor of the University of Mississippi in 1969.

Blass is a member of the American, Mississippi, Louisiana and Harrison County bar associations. He's also been elected to the American College of Trial Lawyers.

As an active member of St. Paul's Catholic Church in Pass Christian, Blass has served as president of the Parish Council and as a member of the Diocesan Pastoral Council.

Blass and his wife, Marion, have four daughters and nine grandchildren.

Zoning

objections to the request are that the property is built up so much that there is little left to subdivide, and that Ballantine Street tends to become congested with traffic around Breeden's property, especially on the weekends.

After discussing the matter and hearing the arguments from Haas and Breeden's attorney, Lucien Gex, the board decided to accept the planning and zoning commission's denial of the application.

Other matters addressed included:

—declaring properties belonging to Rosie McGowan and Elodie Maurice to be menaces and moving to advertise for bids to remove the structures and clean the lots;

—approval of an application by Garland Taylor to subdivide his property on N. Beach Blvd.;

—approval of an application by Maurice Singleton for a variance on his property at Easter-brook St.;

—approval to pay two claims made by Bay Electric;

—passing a motion to buy an ad in the St. Rose Fair program booklet;

—passing a motion for city hall to change its local telephone service to AT&T's Essex system;

—and opening and rejecting bids to clean properties on St. George and Washington streets.

The bids were rejected because the city is operating under a local ordinance that allows a maximum fine of only $1,000 to be levied against a property owner for property cleanup. Both bids exceeded that $1,000 limit.

The ordinance will be replaced with a state law that allows a stiffer fine June 7, when a council motion repealing the local ordinance goes into effect.

WWII unit sets reunion

The 904th Field Artillery Battalion of the famed 79th Infantry Division of WWII will conduct its annual reunion in Asheville, N.C. July 5, 6, 7 and 8.

The battalion, after participating in the Normandy Invasion was distinguished for conquering the Cherbourg Peninsula in addition to battle campaigns in Northern France, Rhineland, Central Europe and Ardennes-Alsace.

The 79th Division was known as the Lorraine Cross Division and was awarded France's Unit Citation of the Croix DeGuerre for its assistance in combat to that country.

Duke Levy, now a resident of Diamondhead, who served with the battalion from its activation in June 1942 and throughout combat, is interested in getting this reunion notice to all former members of the 904th Battalion who reside in Mississippi and neighboring states.

He may be contacted at (601) 255-2715.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Theatre goers should not forget the Bay St. Louis Little Theater's performance of "Any Number Can Die" scheduled to start tonight.

The play is directed by Ed Scanlan, and curtain time is 8 p.m. and also scheduled for May 25, 25; June 1 and 2.

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre is located on Boardman Avenue in the Cedar Point area.

The production is a hilarious takeoff on the mystery plays of the late Twenties, and we are told it is very good.

Poll managers want to remember that it is necessary to attend Instruction Classes in order to work at the polls in the coming elections.

Tonight there will be a session at the Lakeshore School and tomorrow night at the Hancock County Courthouse beginning at 7 p.m.

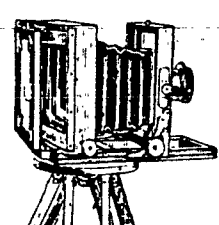

It is a state law that requires that poll managers must have attended a training session.

Congratulations are in order for Petty Officer 1st Class Gregory H. Noll upon being named Naval Oceanography Command Sailor of the Year for 1990.

Noll is a technical writer for meteorological/oceanographic training materials at the Naval Oceanography Command Facility at the John C. Stennis Space Center.

This is a big honor for the Bay St. Louis resident, and I wish him many more years of success in the U.S. Navy.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Parents should spend a day in school with kids

Dear Editor,

This is concerning the picture in the May 20 paper of parents and kids picketing "abusive" teachers at Gulfview School.

I am a substitute teacher at Gulfview and Bay Middle schools.

The children come home and complain about the teachers, but do they tell you how they behave in school? I don't believe so.

If you knew how some of these children act in school, you would understand why teachers have to punish and sometimes literally scream at their classes.

They are worse with a substitute. I have been talked back to, screamed at and called a witch, and threatened to burn my house down and have me fired because of making kids to their work.

Maybe it should be required that each parent spend one day in a classroom to see what goes on. You would be surprised.

Sandra Nesom

Gulfview is good school with good teachers

Dear Editor,

This is concerning the picture in Sunday's paper of the Gulfview School kids picketing. It was a put-down to Gulfview. I feel it should have been followed with a story.

I have children at Gulfview. The oldest son has spent seven years at Gulfview, my younger son three years.

They do not wish to go to any other school. I have a baby at home. I am looking forward to sending her to Gulfview School in the future.

All schools in Mississippi could use some improvement, but I strongly feel there are not any abusive teachers at Gulfview.

We parents need to let the public know Gulfview is a good school with good teachers.

Dumpster supporters resent criticism

To the Editor:

To start with, it was not the six families who signed the letter that decided to put the Harbor Drive dumpsters where they are now.

It was a majority of people who agreed it would be nice to have a dumpster in our community, and the location was picked because of easy access.

We did not say the garbage service was throwing the garbage in the woods, what we said was people from our area and neighboring areas were throwing trash in the sparsely populated roads in Harbor Estates and Bayou Phillips. We have proof, because a few people, myself included, have caught them.

About the neighborhood residents who clean around the dumpsters, we do not get paid for our labors, we do things rather than sit back and complain.

Now about covenants—there are none. They became obsolete about three or more years ago. That is why there are mobile homes and not just houses and such.

About the park at the end of Washington Street, the county has decided not to build a park there for safety reasons.

For the answer to how close do we live to the dumpster, I am in walking distance.

Just one more comment, you said you just can't take us seriously. Well, we see just how serious you are because I have never seen you clean up around the dumpster or the back roads.

Oh, I don't drink beer, but I do love pizza. But all we really want is an apology!

Dr. Ben Canada to head Jackson school district

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

If Ben Canada had made up his mind about this state on the basis of the kind of Mississippi "hospitality" he received back in 1964, he probably wouldn't be coming back to head the state's largest school system.

Canada, then a student at all-black Southern University at Baton Rouge, was driving through the Mississippi Delta at night with several other students on the way to a SU football game in Tennessee.

For no reason at all remember this was the year when Mississippi was "burning"—they were pulled over and ordered out of the car by a white law officer.

"I don't remember if it was a highway patrolman or a sheriff, but he pulled his gun on us and made us stand out in the rain while he decided what he was going to do with us. Believe me, I was frightened," Canada recalls.

Eventually, the group of black students was allowed to continue on their way to Tennessee. But on the return trip, Canada says, "we didn't come back through Mississippi."

Now, a quarter of a century later, the cheery, round-faced chin-whiskered Canada is returning to Mississippi July 1 to become superintendent of the Jackson Public Schools, the first black to head the 34,000-student system which currently has a 70-30 black-white ratio.

What's more, the 45-year-old Canada is not at all frightened anymore by the thought of being back in Mississippi or taking on the rather monumental job of being the chief school officer in the state's capital city.

So vital does the Jackson School Board consider the job that it is bringing in Canada, now deputy superintendent of schools in Tucson, Ariz. at $100,000 a year, $4,000 more than the state has just boosted the salary of newly named State Superintendent of Education Richard Thompson.

Admittedly, Canada says, he was surprised to see how much Mississippi has changed. "When I came, I found a sense that Mississippians want to get beyond the negative perception that the past conjures up," he says.

It's not that Canada is a stranger to a once strictly segregated society. He was born and reared in Tallulah, La., a small town just across the Mississippi River from Vicksburg.

The first time he was ever around a school system that wasn't segregated, he says, was when he got a job teaching in Las Vegas after his graduation from Southern University in 1967.

Incidentally, his wife, a childhood sweetheart from Tallulah, agreed to marry him after his first year of teaching, only if he left Las Vegas. So the next year, he got a teaching job in Seattle, Wash.

There, throughout the 1970s, he moved up the line as principal of schools at the elementary, junior high and high school level. In between, he won his master's degree at the University of Washington. His doctorate came at University of Texas after he had gone on to the Tucson school system.

In Jackson, Canada will be coming into a school system that was battered with wholesale white flight to private segregated academies after total integration was ordered by the federal court in 1970. Ever since, there has been a constant struggle to hold the white presence in the public schools and lure more whites back to the school system.

The other day when Canada came to town to get his feet on the ground he met with a group called Parents for Public Schools, made up primarily of middle class white parents which is undertaking a full-fledged media and public relations campaign to bring whites back to the public schools.

"I'm not going to condemn the private academies," said Canada. "I simply don't want anyone to go to private schools because they feel they have to go there to get an education. I want them to check us out and know they have an option."

Canada believes that Mississippi, with Gov. Ray Mabus' new educational reform program in place, will be the place to be on the cutting edge of education in the 1990s. "It's exciting to be in Mississippi at a time of change, and hopefully to contribute a small bit to that change."

Mississippians have shown him they can grow, says Canada. Maybe even the cop who stopped him in the Delta in 1964.

seeking to provide water service to the school.

Robert Genin, attorney for the port and harbor commission, said the commission is happy to give the school emergency and temporary water service until permanent service can be established, but also confirmed Haas' statement.

"We're not looking to get into the water business. We'd just as soon the school district put down its own well or go with Kiln Water District," he said. "If the school does get out of the water district and comes to us with a proposal, we'll consider it, but we're not asking or seeking to give the school water service."

Norwood Bultman, an engineer/technician with the Public Service Commission in Jackson, said the school is located in Kiln Water District's certificated area, which means the water district is obliged to service the school, whether or not it has the capacity to do so, unless the school provides its own water.

Bultman said the costs to the school of installing and maintaining a well may seem low at first, but will add up over time, especially with the added cost of a chlorination system.

Jim McDonald at the State Health Department in Jackson said Kiln Water District is close to its capacity as the system currently exists.

However, he added, the district has applied for federal assistance to drill a new well.

Eddie Danzey, assistant superintendent of schools, sent a letter on May 18 to Kiln Water District board chairman Cleveland Wyatt requesting a meeting between the school board and the water district to try and resolve the water service problem.

As of press time, Wyatt was out of town and Haas was awaiting his return to confer with him about such a meeting.

Arboretum director to present native plants program June 28

Who? Where? What? When? Why? The following information should be of interest to people who live in this area.

Chris Wells, who has earned a PhD and is superintendent of The Crosby Arboretum, has scheduled a presentation June 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Marine Education Center in Biloxi.

There are more than 1,200 botanical gardens and arboreta in the world, but the Crosby Arboretum is the first scientific and educational organization in the Central Gulf States which is devoted exclusively to the study of native plants, Dr. Wells said.

The study of native plants and their importance in the regional environment and economy completed its first full year of programs in 1987.

All nature lovers are encouraged to wear comfortable walking shoes and take path journeys through pond, slough and savanna. The 64 acres near Picayune is supplemented by a 1,700-acre network in the Pearl River Drainage Basin. This advance information about the June 28 presentation should give those who hope to attend time to make plans. Martia Ehde may be reached for information at 865-1508 or 865-1595.

Pinocote, the native plant center, has a 4,000-square-foot open air pavilion.

Visitors to the Crosby Arboretum will have an opportunity to learn more about the wide variety of wild flowers that grow in Mississippi, and gardeners are encouraged to use native plants in their landscaping.

"What is so rare as a day in June?" pens the poet. Perhaps the presentation to be given June 28 in Biloxi will inspire field trips to Crosby Arboretum.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

The weather we've been enjoying calls for picnics and barbecues, doesn't it? And, our area supermarkets are well stocked with picnics and barbecue fare, as well as all sorts of supplies.

With specials on beef brisket, along with beef and pork roasts and chops, there's something to suit just about everyone. If you haven't tried barbecued brisket, now's the time! Here's:

EASY BARBECUED BEEF BRISKET

- 1 beef brisket (3 or 4 lbs.)
- 2 Tbsp. liquid smoke
- 1 tsp. garlic, minced
- 1 tsp. onion, minced
- 2 tsp. celery salt
- 2 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 cup barbecue sauce of your choice

Cover the brisket with the liquid smoke, garlic, onion, celery salt and Worcestershire. Marinate overnight in the refrigerator. Place the brisket in a roasting pan, cover and bake in a preheated oven (300 degrees) for four to five hours.

For the last hour of cooking, put the brisket on the grill, and baste often with barbecue sauce, adding more if needed, until done. (Four to six servings).

Some cooks prefer to put the brisket on the grill from the start, but this is an easy method on the cook.

Boneless sirloin tip roasts and round steaks are also in good supply just now at the meat counters, along with seven-bone beef chuck roasts and steaks and bone-in chuck roasts—a choice for every taste and budget.

For a thrifty barbecue, you might want to try:

LEMON GRILLED CHUCK STEAK

- 1 tsp. lemon peel, grated
- 2/3 cup lemon juice
- 1/3 cup vegetable oil
- 2 green onion tops, chopped
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tsp. prepared mustard
- 1 chuck steak (approximately four pounds) 1 1/2 inches thick

Combine the first eight ingredients to make the tenderizing marinade (that's the reason for all the lemon juice and peel). Pour the marinade over the chuck steak and let sit for three hours at room temperature or six hours in the refrigerator, or overnight in the refrigerator as you choose.

Grill over the coals for 15 minutes a side for rare, or for 12 minutes per side for medium. To serve, slice quite thinly across the grain. (Eight servings).

Let's not forget that perennial favorite, chicken, and cook up:

LEMON BARBECUED CHICKEN

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

The story of barbecue, some sages have observed, is the story of America. Settlers arriving on this continent found nature's riches in abundance all around them and learned from the native Indians to set the bounty afire and eat it all!

Of course, barbecue has been around for centuries, historians tell us, probably man's first cooked food after he had discovered fire.

And what a feast it has been, with barbecue there from the beginning of our country. "Went up to Alexandria to barbecue" George Washington confided to his diary, misspelling and all, in 1769. And, with good reason; few feasts were more popular, especially in the South, from plantation gatherings to political rallies and so on, an excellent and ever so tasty way to prepare food for large numbers of diners outdoors.

Our family has always been especially fond of barbecue—real, honest to goodness barbecue, that is, and we have been known to go miles and miles out of our way to search out "real" barbecue in our travels around our country through the years.

So it was that some 35 to 40 years ago, after reading an article in Saturday Evening Post, we detoured almost 100 miles from our destination to stop at Sprayberry's barbecue restaurant in Newnan, Ga. just this side of Atlanta while driving our elder son Bill to summer camp in the mountains of Tennessee!

Through the ensuing years on subsequent summer vacation trips, we returned again and yet again to Sprayberry's. So, I really shouldn't have been surprised when, on our recent trip to South Carolina, Bill headed for Newnan to take Roi and me to dinner at Sprayberry's! And, it was every bit as delicious as I had remembered.

Along with our barbecue—the "real, real," long-cooked and well-seasoned pork I remembered, we enjoyed the delicious slaw and Brunswick Stew. I can't, of course, tell you just how Sprayberry cooks achieve their excellence of barbecue, as that's their secret, but I can tell you a bit about the Brunswick Stew, which is served in bowls to accompany the barbecue, a tasty mixture of chicken and butter beans and corn and potatoes and seasonings and such.

Brunswick Stew, like so many of our great Southern dishes, knows many variations. All traditional sources agree that game, usually squirrel, was originally used, long-simmered over an open fire with corn as a main ingredient. Nowadays, chicken is usually substituted, with some cooks adding ham bone or beef, and with butter (lima) beans and potatoes adding to the flavor. But few recipes coincide, and there are conflicting versions also as to the origin of the name itself, with Brunswick County, Georgia, and Brunswick County, Virginia vying for the title.

Brunswick Stew has through many years remained one of the principal attractions of political rallies, family reunions and other gatherings and was served as a side dish with the barbecue. Here's a modernized version of:

GEORGIA BRUNSWICK STEW

- 2 Tbsp. bacon or salt pork drippings or oil
- 1 broiler-fryer chicken (2 1/2 lbs.) cut up
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3 cups water
- 1 cup crumbs (2 slices day-old bread, crumbled)
- 2 cups corn, cut from cob
- 2 cups shelled fresh butter (lima) beans or 10-oz. pkg. frozen, thawed slightly
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 3 medium potatoes, peeled and grated
- Dash of hot pepper sauce to taste

Cayenne pepper as desired. In Dutch oven or kettle, heat drippings or oil, and add chicken, a few pieces at a time, to brown well on all sides. Remove as pieces brown. Add the onion to the fat left in pan, and cook for only a minute before returning the chicken to the pan. Add the water, crumbs, vegetables and seasonings.

plastic wrap, and marinate in the refrigerator for several hours, turning occasionally. Remove from the refrigerator an hour before grilling, then grill for 20 to 25 minutes per side, or until done, basting often. (Eight to 10 servings).

Shorten the process as I do, by cooking the chicken briefly in the microwave, or broiling it before grilling and, that way, you're sure that it's cooked through to the bone! The shortened grilling time keeps the chicken from burning, while still giving that grilled flavor and appearance. (Ten to 12 servings).

Why not pick up some of that good fresh corn, and grill ears of corn as well—and potatoes and onions, too. And for dessert, sweet fresh strawberries and bananas, tumbling over ice cream!

Bluegrass month celebrated with festivals across state

May is Bluegrass Music Month in Mississippi as declared by Gov. Ray Mabus in a proclamation presented to Bertie Sullivan, Mississippi coordinator for Worldwide Bluegrass Music Month. For 44 years, bluegrass music has been a vital part of the American musical fabric, has entertained millions of people and has provided a basis for contemporary country music, rock and roll, and the New Age genre of music. Bluegrass music draws on blues, jazz, gospel, ragtime and hillbilly musical traditions. This international music form is played by native bands in 24 counties. Bluegrass music mirrors the American character while providing entertainment and recreation for hundreds of thousands of Americans each year. Sullivan, of Hattiesburg, serves the International Bluegrass Music Association as regional representative of the Gulf Region of Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas. The International Bluegrass Music Association is headquartered in Owensboro, Ky.

Bluegrass festivals and events are scheduled in many areas of Mississippi during the month of May. Bluegrass will be featured at the 10th Annual Maynor Creek Bluegrass Show, Maynor Creek Water Park, Waynesboro on May 26; the Carl Jackson Homecoming at the Red Hills Art Festival, Louisville on May 26; and the 13th annual Magnolia State bluegrass Festival, Wiggins beginning May 31.

For further information on bluegrass events call 544-7676 or write Bluegrass, P.O. Box 16778, Hattiesburg, MS 39402-6778.

BAYS Cyclones take state title

The Bay Area Youth Soccer U-10 Boys Team, the Cyclones, sponsored by John Genin, won the Mississippi Youth Soccer Association State Soccer Tournament May 12 in Tupelo.

The Cyclones, coached by Ron Vanney and Steve Carver, started their road to victory May 11 with a two to one win over the Desoto Blast.

The second game of competition saw the local 10-year-old boys tie the Clinton Red Rockers 2-2.

According to Bay St. Louis Mayor Edward Favre, who attended the game, "The team name was never more appropriate. Those boys played like cyclones in the rain and mud in one of the many torrential downpours of the weekend."

Facing a must-win match with the Meridian Outlaws, the Cyclones let one of the state's largest cities know they had met their match with a 2-1 win.

Game four, played for the championship, the 11 young men representing BAYS watched the rain clouds gather and the rains fall.

After a one-hour delay, a break in the weather allowed the Cyclones the chance to play the Greenville Bandits. The regulation game was fought to a 1-1 tie.

The Bandits scored a penalty kick in the second quarter with the Cyclones coming back to tie the score 1-1 with excellent offensive play.

The action then went to two five-minute overtimes ending with the Cyclones claiming a 2-3 victory.

Members of the championship team include Chris Genin, Jason Sick, Jason Hoda, Ronnie Vanney, Dusty Carver, Jimmy Saucier, Justin Wadsworth, Charlie Buckley, Andy Manieri, Les Sackett and Mark Perniciaro.

During the presentation of proclamation to honor the team and their coaches Favre stated, "It is an honor for me, on behalf of the citizens of Bay St. Louis to recognize this group of fine young men for their dedication to their sport, their fine team effort and to thank them for the honor that they have brought to Bay St. Louis and the area soccer program."

Cyclones are tops

ions," the duo from St. Stanislaus made their presence felt. Since the Mississippi High School Athletic Association track season ended with the state meet, each of the young men ran unattached (not affiliated with his school).

In the opening running event, the 3200-meter run, Brian Brooks dominated the field by winning with a time of 9:37. This registers as the fastest time for this event by a high school student this year.

Brooks also competed in the 1600-meter run, where he placed second in a personal best of 4:32.

Chris Reisch continued domination in the 200-meter dash, outrunning a stellar field in the sprint.

Reisch posted a 21.7 clocking on his way to victory. He also ran the 100-meter dash placing third in a close finish.

Bay Wave girls soccer team loses championship after winning season

The Bay Area Youth Soccer Girls U-12 team, the Bay Wave, lost a shoot-out with the Northeast Jackson Eagles after two overtime periods, just missing a win at the state championship in Tupelo May 20.

The Wave started the tournament May 19 with a 6-1 win against the Tupelo Breakers, last year's state champion. The Wave also won its second and third games Sunday against the Vicksburg Magic with a score of 7-1, and against the Northeast Jackson Classics with a score of 3-0.

In its third game of the day, the Wave drew the Eagles into two overtimes, but missed its last shot in the shoot-out. The Eagles made its last shot to win the game 2-1.

The loss against the Eagles is the Wave's only loss of the 1990 season.

Coach Bernard Tusa said

this year's tournament was the third try at the state championship for some of the players.

"The girls have played very hard all year waiting for this game to arrive. To lose it like this is very hard."

Tusa added that the team played an outstanding season.

"Maybe our fourth try will be ours," he concluded.

Ole Miss offers golf camps

Three sessions of the Ole Miss Golf Camp will be offered on June 3-7, June 17-21 and June 24-28 for boys and girls ages 10 through 1991 high school seniors.

Instruction will be provided by Ole Miss Golf Coach Larry Slone. Campers will receive professional instruction in all phases of golf—including chipping, putting, sand shots, iron play, wood play, specialty shots and game management.

Golfers will also study rules of golf and golf etiquette and learn self-improvement drills. Participants will be divided into groups based on ability and skill.

The Ole Miss Golf Camp staff is comprised of Professional Golfers' Association professionals and selected collegiate golfers, who serve as counselors.

Each camp will be limited to 40 golfers.

The registration fee for resident campers is $300 and for day campers $255. Resident campers—whose fee includes instruction, housing, meals, accident insurance, an Ole Miss visor, a camp shirt and golf balls—must pay a $100 deposit with the balance due on registration day on the Ole Miss campus. Daycampers, whose fee includes everything but housing and meals, must pay a deposit of $100, with the balance due on registration day.

Refunds will be made if requested 48 hours prior to the opening of the camp.

The camps are being coordinated by the Ole Miss Center for Public Service and Continuing Studies. For registration information, call (601) 232-7282.

Thomas, Warren earn NAACP scholarships

Courtney Thomas of Bay Senior High and Staci Warren of Hancock North Central are recipients of the annual NAACP Albert J. Fairconnetue Scholarship Award.

Both of these young students were named valedictorians of their respective high schools. Each will receive a $1,000 scholarship for the fall semester.

Thomas wrote her essay on the subject, "Teenage Apathy."

She identified the passive approach students appear to take toward their future. Excerpts from her essay include:

"This approach is indifferent and lacks interest in education, self esteem and dignity for human worth. These problems are not new, but they are more complex today."

"Anything requiring diligence is easily dismissed by today's youth. They appear to lack the old college try exhibited by other generations. If you are not part of the solution, you are certainly part of the problem."

"Parents, teachers and community leaders must come together to help us erode this problem of teenage apathy by demonstrating cohesiveness, participating in family oriented programs and just talking to today's teenagers about the quality of life and how to achieve it."

Warren wrote about techngers trying to be part of the "in-crowd." She said that being part of the in-crowd does not mean participating in illegal or illicit activities that get young adults into trouble, but actually going out and helping your fellow human beings in a Christian way.

"The way to choosing the most advantageous in-crowd begins with teachings at home and by following the examples of their parents before them," she said.

Each of the scholarship recipients plan to major in pre-law.

The NAACP also sponsored Tamera Labat at the Mississippi Homecoming Queen competition in Jackson on May 12. She reached the semi-final round of the competition before the winners were selected, but Tamera said that this was a very exciting time in her life and the experience was well worth the trip.
